FLYING THE FLAG AT HALF-STAFF

On Memorial Day, the United States Flag is flown at half-staff until noon as a solemn gesture of mourning for the Fallen. At noon, the flag is raised to full-staff, symbolizing the nation's resolve to honor the memory of the Fallen and continue the Fight for Freedom. Many individuals and organizations also display flags at their homes, businesses, and public spaces as a sign of respect.

MOMENT OF REMEMBRANCE

At 3:00 PM local time on Memorial Day, Americans are encouraged to observe a moment of remembrance to honor the sacrifices of the Fallen. This moment of silence provides an opportunity for reflection and reverence, allowing individuals to pause and pay their respects in their own way.

SUPPORTING VETERANS AND MILITARY FAMILIES

Memorial Day is also a time to support veterans and military families who have lost loved ones in service to their country. Many organizations and communities offer support services, financial assistance, and emotional support to veterans and their families. Donating to veterans' charities, volunteering at VA hospitals, and reaching out to military families are meaningful ways to show support and gratitude.

CONCLUSION

Memorial Day is a time-honored tradition that allows Americans to come together to honor, reflect, and remember the brave men and women who have made the ultimate sacrifice for their country. By observing Memorial Day with reverence and respect, we ensure that the memory of the Fallen lives on and that their legacy of courage and sacrifice is never forgotten.
