Wangari Maathai was a brave woman from Kenya who loved trees and nature. She believed that planting trees could make the world a better place. Wangari started a movement called the Green Belt Movement, where people came together to plant trees and protect the environment. She won the Nobel Peace Prize for her work in helping the planet and the people who live on it. Wangari showed us that even one person can make a big difference by caring for the Earth and working together with others.
