Wang Zhenyi was a clever and brave woman from ancient China who loved studying stars and planets. She lived over 200 years ago and wrote many books about astronomy, which is the study of stars and space. Wang Zhenyi was curious and always asked lots of questions to understand the world around her. She believed that everyone, no matter their gender, should have the chance to learn and explore. Wang Zhenyi's passion for learning inspired many people, and her discoveries still help scientists today.
